Hicksville High School
Hicksville, Ohio

1968 was the year of change at Hicksville High School. It marked a change in student government, administration, faculty and buildings.

1968 was the year high school students approved a new Constitution to strengthen student government.

It was the year of nine new teachers and a new superintendent. Junior high students moved into the new wing and HHS once again had the use of a gymnasium.

Change came in class plays, dances, clubs and curricula. New students enrolled and others left.

Change was the word, 1968 was the year.

Aces Win Fourth Straight Homecoming

Rain dampened the ground but not the spirit of the Aces and their fans on Friday evening, September 29. The queen and her court, the band, four class floats, and many parents and friends turned out to participate in the festivities of the annual HHS Homecoming.

A parade, led by the high school marching band, proceeded to the football field from the high school. Pre-game activities included the coronation of Queen Debbie Stuckey and her attendants: Senior Lora Rohrs, Junior Deb Kerr, Sophomore Judy Tuttle and Freshman Lora Stuckman.

A trophy was awarded to the senior class for their winning float display, "Bury the Pirates."

Aces defeated Grand Rapids with a score of 27-0. After the game, a dance featuring a live band, was sponsored by the senior class.

Excitement was evident all through the game, as cheerleaders led the crowd in their cheering.

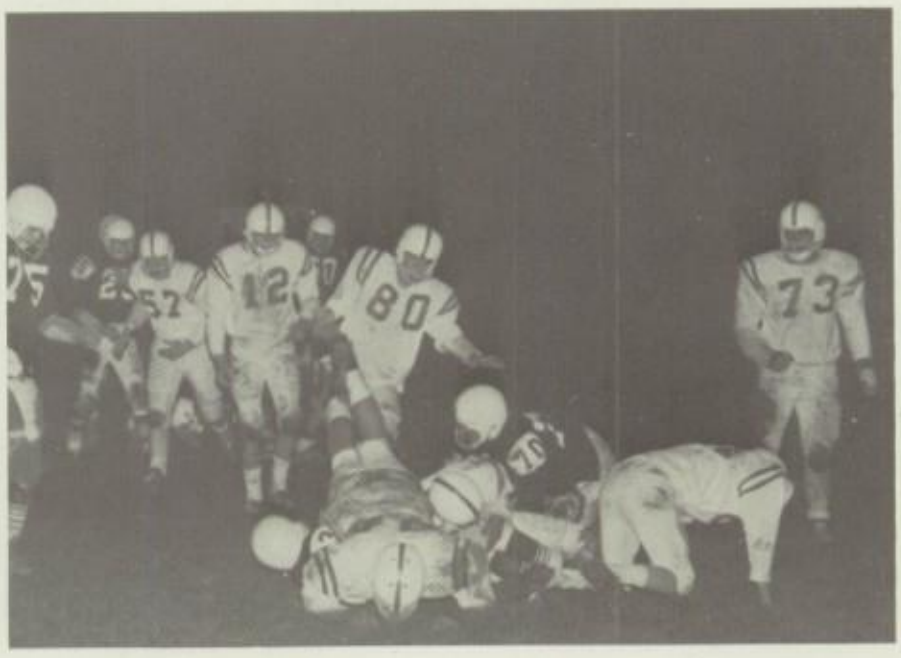
After the crowning, Rick Straley escorts Queen Debbie to her throne.



Cheered on by an enthusiastic crowd, the Aces do their very best to down their opponents.

Everyone Knows "No Boys Allowed"

Even though it's Rita that Fred plans to protect from Mr. Midnight, Victrola expects him to protect her, too.

"No Boys Allowed," a three-act comedy, was presented by the junior class on March 29 and 30.

Because of an unfortunate accident, the part of Belinda Elliot, assigned to Cathy White, was played by Maurine Banks.

The story takes place in the Baxter residence where Rita Baxter is having a slumber party. Rita has just split with her boyfriend Fred, and has asked Keith and Harvey to guard the party, but everyone knows that there are no boys allowed at a girls' slumber party.

A great clash arises when Harvey is mistaken for the neighborhood prowler, Mr. Midnight; Fred and Leroy are blamed for stealing the refreshments, when it was really Keith and Harvey.

Utter chaos results when many of the girls are kidnapped, and the cook, Victrola, is continually trying to quit.

LEFT: Leroy tries to scare the girls into admitting that they need protection. ABOVE: Mr. Midnight claims one of his first victims, Patsy, in the Baxter household.

On Saturday evening, May 11, 1968, the junior class presented "Jungle Safari" as the theme for this year's Junior-Senior Banquet and Prom. A steak dinner was served by sophomore waiters and waitresses, who later presented "Rhythms of the Jungle."

Toastmasters Dave Kaduk and Terry Kimple introduced guest speaker Rafael Rodriques, who spoke on "Life in Venezuela," and Mr. Arthur White, superintendent, who spoke about "Arrows of Wisdom." Prom music was furnished by "The Rare Breed" of Fort Wayne, Indiana.

The movie, "Tarzan's Three Challenges," was shown at the Huber Theater to begin post-prom. Following the movie, a record hop was held at the American Legion Hall to music presented by "This Daze Journey" of Defiance College. Door prizes, donated by Hicksville merchants, were awarded during the movie and post-prom dance.

Grammar, Drama and Novels Occupy

Junior English students wrote essays on "Freedom's Challenge." Becky Brockelbank and Maurine Banks show reference materials used.

Students are required to take three units of English and may add one more plus a unit of speech during their four years at Hicksville High School. These courses include grammar, literature and the art of speaking properly.

Freshman classes concentrate their study efforts on grammar and general literature. All classes read Charles Dickens' David Copperfield. They also study myths and the gods and goddesses. To help them relate spelling words and their meanings, the students write stories comprised of words on their spelling lists.

As sophomores, more time is spent on literature and grammar. They study such men as William Shakespeare. They get a general background for their next two years of study.

Junior English students devote the year to the study of American literature. Writing techniques are presented and students write short stories and essays. Contemporary American drama is also studied during the year.

Seniors, in the study of English literature, are introduced to the masters of the English language and their advanced forms of writing. The study of the history of England is also incorporated in the year's studies.

Portraying Ophelia and Hamlet, Cheryl Altman and Jim Little read a scene from "Hamlet," one of several Shakespearean plays studied by English literature students.

UPPER RIGHT: Good topics are not the only requirements for diverting speeches. Jeff Ulery demonstrates the need to keep the audience interested by the delivery of the speech.

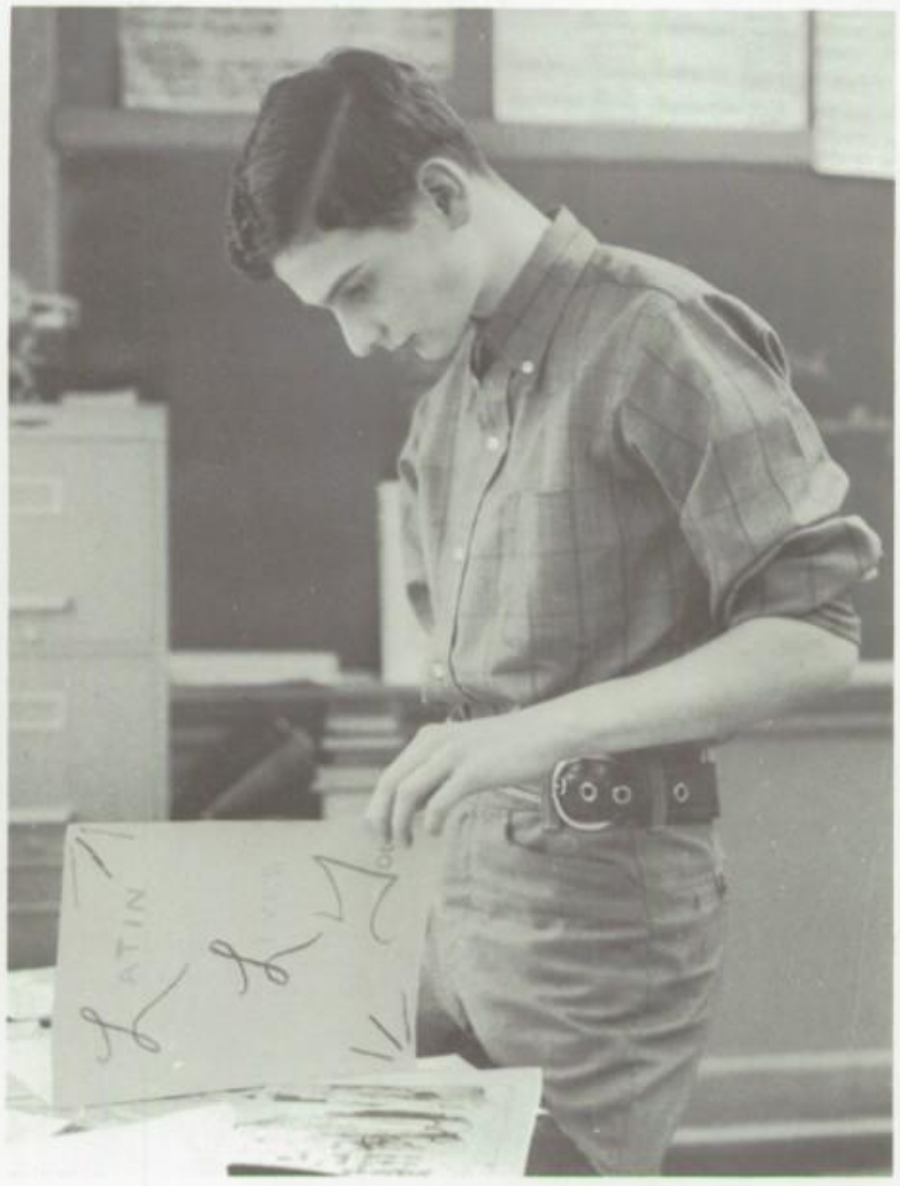
Language Students Learn To Speak

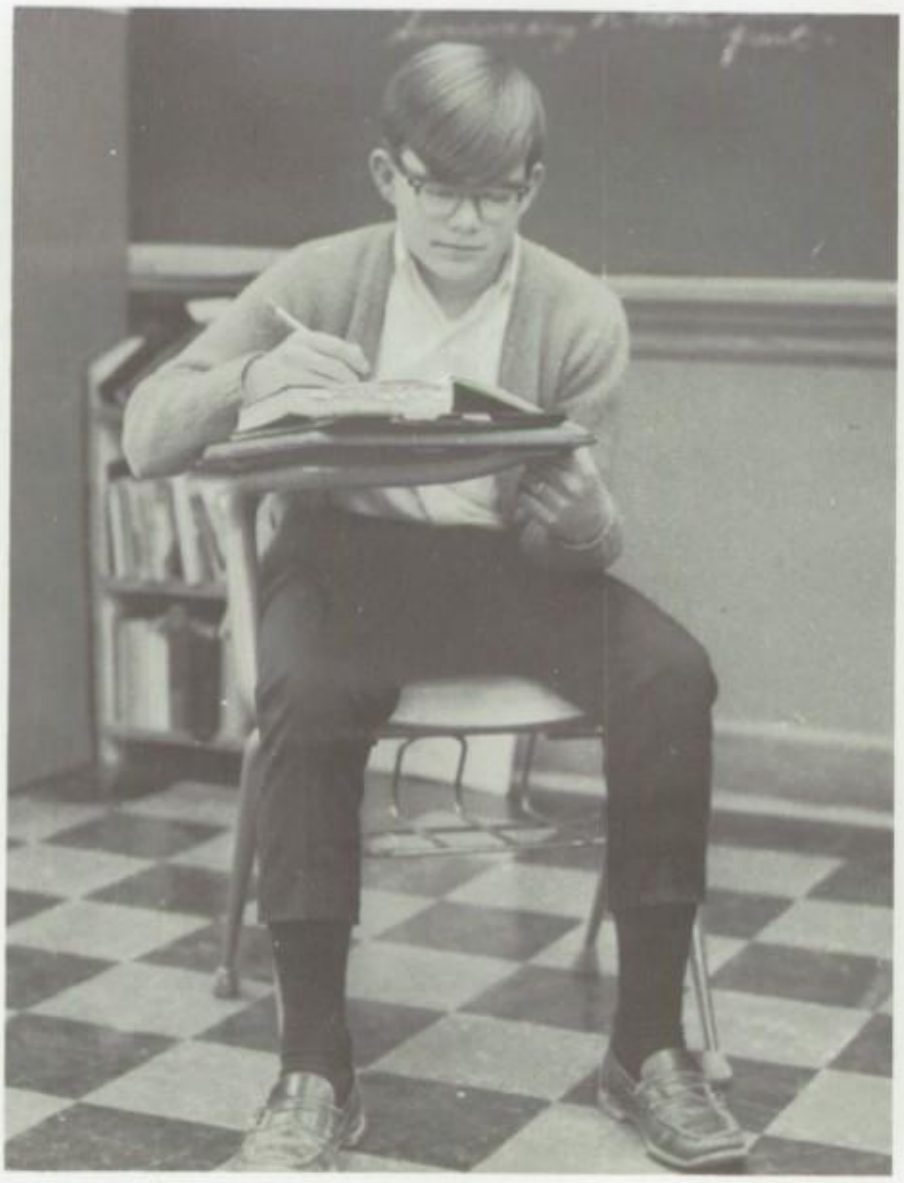


Translation of mythology and stories of Aeneas and Ulysses following the Trojan War are two techniques used in first year Latin to improve the student's understanding of the Latin language and the customs of the Romans. Naturally, before translation can take place, new words and grammar rules must be learned. The first year of this subject, 834 words are introduced.

Second year students extend their study of grammar rules and conjugation. They translate Jason and the Argonauts and the diary of Julius Caesar during the Gallic Wars.

Both first and second year students are required to make Latin and Roman notebooks. These notebooks include pictures depicting the Roman alphabet, myths and modern advertisements pertaining to ancient Rome.

LEFT: Looking through Latin notebooks, Mike Adcock searches for ideas to incorporate in his book. BELOW: Contrasting the difference between the modern day and Roman student, Paul Doeden represents the student of today while Bert DeVeau depicts how a scholar of Rome may have looked.



in Foreign Tongues

Learning the basics of the Spanish language is the main concern of Spanish I classes. Their time is spent learning the many new words. Once their vocabulary is started, students go on to tackle the grammar rules to be put to use in basic composition. Studying not only the language, students are required to select a Spanish-speaking country and report on its customs and people.

Second year Spanish students further their knowledge of the language and people through grammar study and tape recordings and films. They display an ability to converse by giving a report on a Spanish-speaking country in the native tongue. Deviating from grammar and conversation, the classes read Spanish literature dating from the twelfth century through modern times.

While a Bowling Green University student observed the classes, students had the opportunity to see slides and other souvenirs from her trip through Spain.

One outside activity planned this year was a trip to the Toledo Museum of Art to view Spanish paintings on display.

Five Courses of Mathematics is important because it promotes logical processes in solving problems. Students at Hicksville High School are offered five courses in this subject area.

Freshmen have a choice in either general math or Algebra I. General math extends and deepens the students' knowledge of arithmetic and its everyday applications. Algebra I introduces students to the interesting world of equations with x, y, and z.

In the sophomore and junior years, Algebra II, an advanced course of algebra, and geometry are offered. Geometry teaches the student to do his work in a logical manner, proving it by axioms and theorems.

ABOVE: Figuring and drawing angles with the aid of a protractor is an important phase of general math as Gary Kimpel ad Cindy McDonald discover.

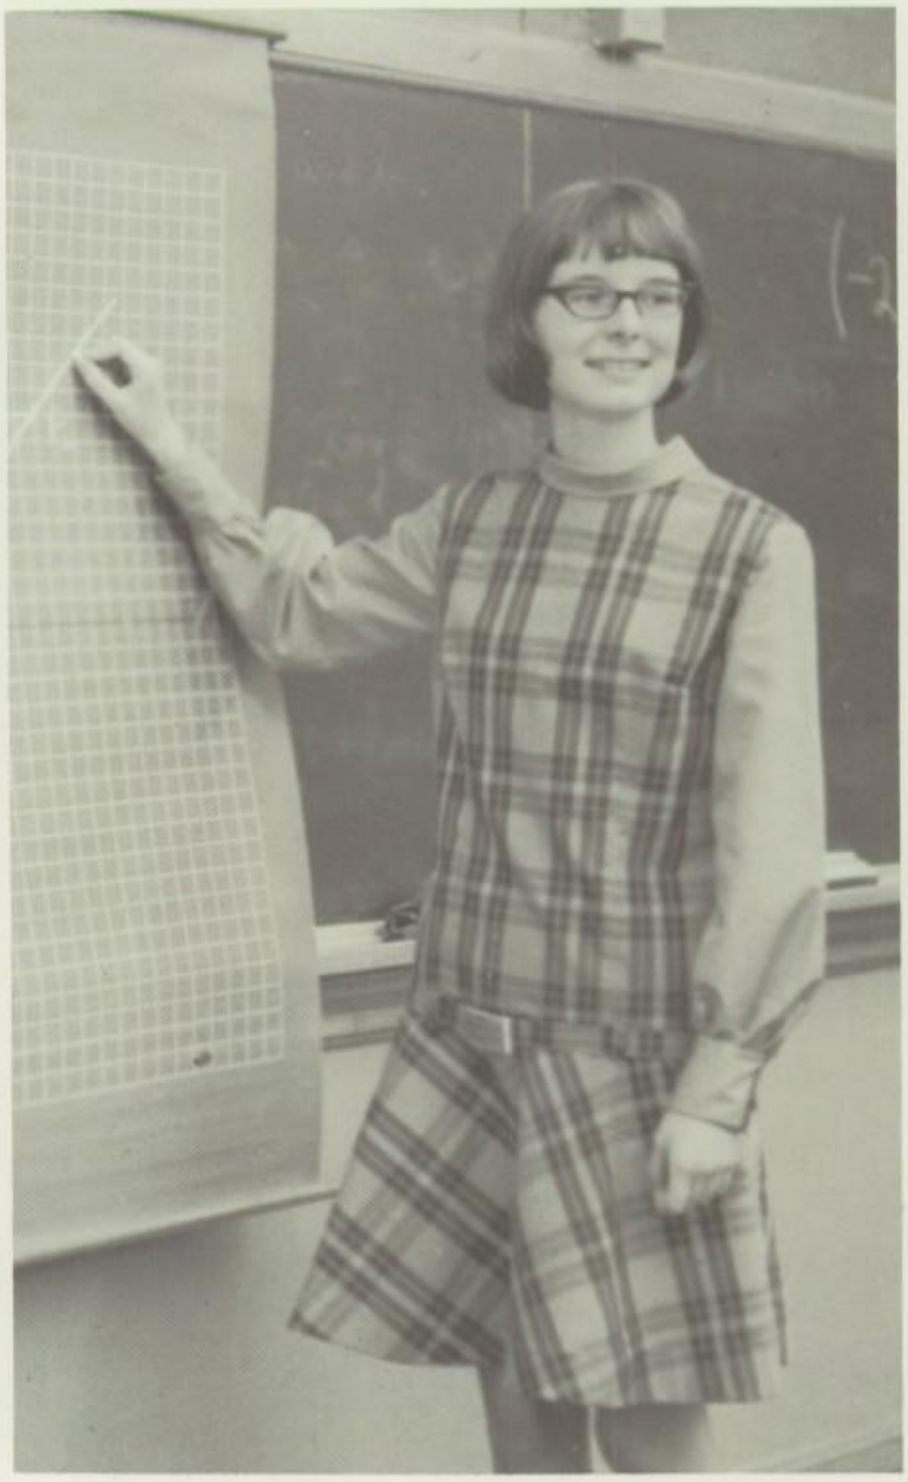
BELOW: Slide rules relieve many headaches for trigonometry students as Rick Straley and Dave Green find while setting up a sine law problem.

BELOW: Analytic geometry and calculus are an introduction to college math. Here, Don Agler explains to Roy Hurni why this equation is graphed in the manner shown.

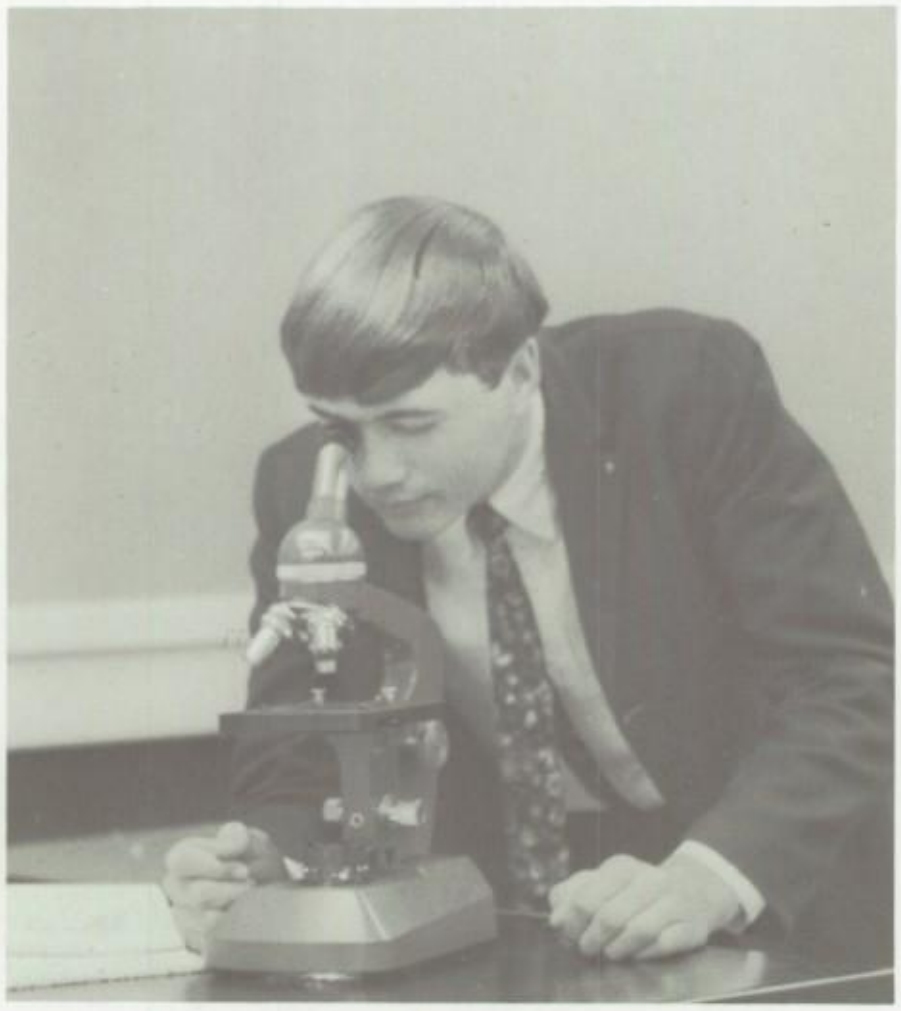
Mathematics Offered at Hicksville

Seniors enjoy a taste of college level courses in advanced math. Trigonometry, offered first semester, makes full use of the triangle in all applications. Analytic geometry makes use of trigonometry and geometry. Introductory calculus is classifed as a Newtonian science. These two subjects are offered second semester.

UPPER RIGHT: Algebra II introduces the students to geometry. Lewis King shows that it is helpful to make a sketch before solving an equation. LOWER RIGHT: Plotting the graph of an equation is an important concept taught in Algebra I. Barbara Bruggeman proves that she knows how to graph x=y. BELOW: Deb Kerr knows from experience that geometry requires a lot of paperwork before a solution is clear.



Science Department Aided By New Lab



Microscopes prove useful to students in biology. Dan Cole studies a bacterium on his slide.

Hicksville High School's science department has been aided by the addition of a new, more modern lab and the purchase of equipment, including microscopes and visual aids. These new facilities are a special help to the science instructors in teaching their subjects.

General science, required of all freshmen, finishes out the series taught in junior high. Its study ranges from that of different types of trees to the basic laws of science.

Biology is an elective offered to sophomores who are interested in the field of natural science. Throughout this course the similarity of all types of life is pointed out. Inherited traits, the study of the human body and the study of many low forms of life make up a large portion of this course. Living examples of the lower animals are studied in the lab as well as dissection of the higher vertebrate.

Accuracy is the byword in physics. Steve Sweeney calculates the time needed to pump the air from the room, for Pam Francies.

Students of senior science obtain practical knowledge of how many things work, including the human heart. John Miller seems enraptured by the beat of Monty Grover's heart.

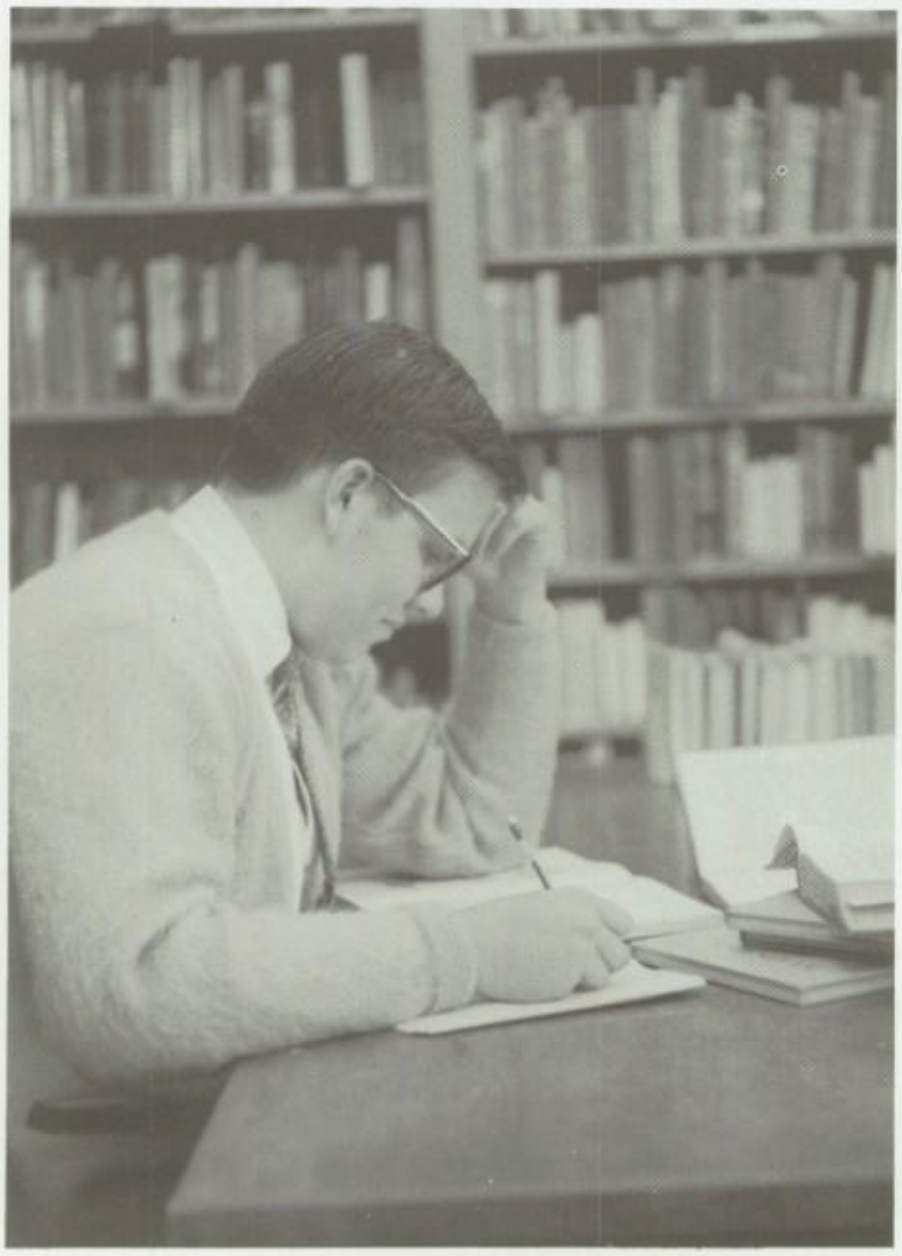
and More Equipment

Chemistry is an elective offered to juniors and seniors. The relationship between math and science is stressed in this course. It includes the study of the basic structure of the different forms of matter. In addition, the properties of many compounds are studied in the lab periods held twice a week. Students are given unknown compounds to analyze and identify during the second semester.

For seniors, there is physics or senior science. The fundamental laws of the universe and their applications are taught in physics. Senior science allows further investigation into such everyday things as the automobile and the human heart.

RIGHT: Chemistry students not only put new substances together, but also take others apart. Using electrolysis, Terry Kimpel separates the two basic elements of water, hydrogen and oxygen. BELOW: Through such simple experiments as dropping a ball into water, general science students Steve Myers, Carol Harter and Bob Myers discover the basic facts of nature.

Maps, Charts, Films, Aid Students



Term papers and map work aid high school students in their study of geography, history and American government. They also utilize various films, maps and charts supplied to make their study easier and more informative.

Required for sophomores for the first time this year, world history involves the investigation of European, Asian and other civilizations, including their way of life and the rulers. The students not only study the history of these people and their countries, but also cite the locations of events on maps.

Juniors are initiated into the complicated world of research as they complete their first term papers for American history. They also link the government and experiences of the United States in the past to the policies now used. Films and reports on battles are used to further the students' study of American wars.

LEFT: Keeping his mind on his work is Mike Cleland's problem. He is using the library facilities to do research for his term paper.

Industrious American history students often make transparencies to aid fellow students in their study of American wars. Here Dave Kaduk points out a battle to Diane Keeley and Cathy White.

in Social Studies

Senior students have the opportunity to take world geography to supplement their current knowledge of world locations with the climates and products of those regions.

Current events are incorporated in the study of American government by senior students. Studies throughout the year include all branches of American government, income taxes, term papers and weekly discussions of current events read in Time magazine. The three government classes also conducted a telephone campaign to get voters to the polls for the special school election.

ABOVE: Studying the branches of government and reading Time magazine are not the only assignments for government students. Dick Adams and Keith Bungard find they must also relate various documents to our present government.

BELOW: Finding numerous countries and cities is an important part of geography. Bob Evans checks a map to correctly locate an Asian city.

BELOW: Library facilities prove useful for world history students as they locate the areas they are studying. Searching through the World Atlas for a Mediterranean port is Cindy Brown.

Students Study Life in Three Courses

Looking over the new sociology books to be used second semester are seniors Helen Handy and Diane Byers.

Senior students, for the first time this year, had the opportunity to take psychology and sociology. These courses were two of five subjects added.

Psychology, the study of the individual, is a first semester course. The book is used as a background and the study expands beyond it, involving further investigation by the students. They are required to study such philosophers as Spinoza, Sartre and Marx. They prepare term papers and present reports on them in class. Topics range from psychotic reactions to the study of prejudiced feelings.

Second semester, sociology is offered. This subject extends the study of the individual to that of groups of people. The environment, culture, human nature, society, problems of the government, economy and the conservation of human resources are topics covered in the book.

Seniors may also take personal problems second semester. In this subject, the students study their own lives and learn how to accept their responsibilities. Assignments include panel discussions, prepared and given by the students.

Colors, Sculptures Studied in Art

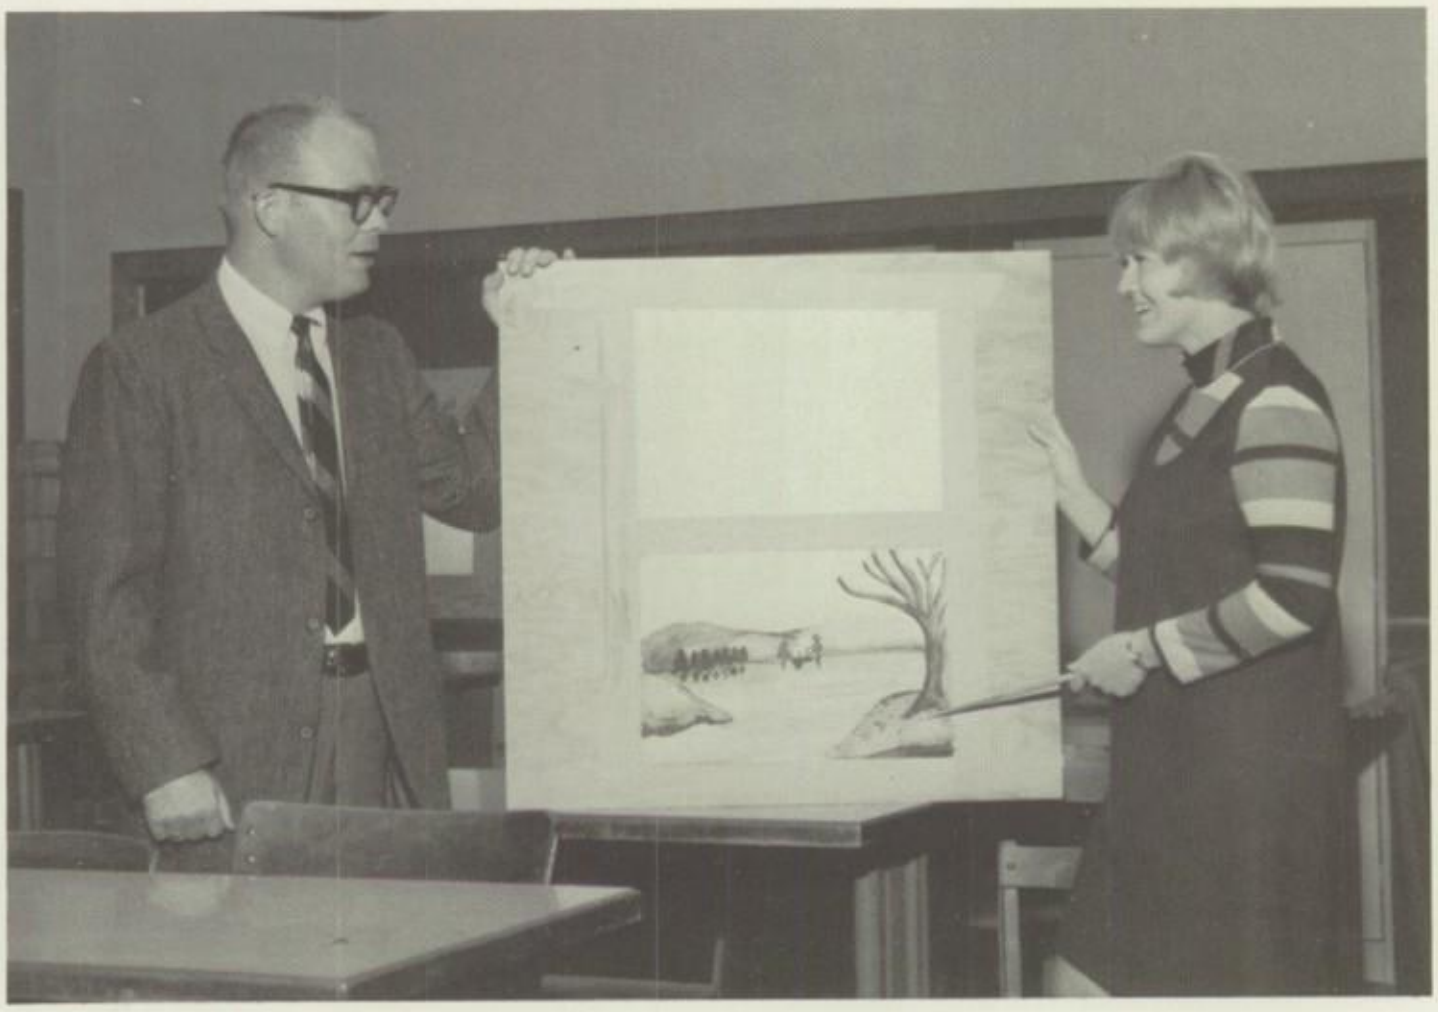
Beginning in the 1967-68 school year, Hicksville High School students had the opportunity to take art instruction. The course is required for junior high classes and is optional in the high school curriculum.

It is necessary to first learn primary and secondary colors before going deeper into the subject. Art students must be able to use colors in a picture to complement and blend with each other. For this reason, the color wheel is also studied.

After students learn colors and how to use them in a picture, they go on to watercolors, doing several pictures. In order to cover many aspects of art, sculptures are attempted in four dimensions using a cement base mixture and three dimensional sculptures are done in plaster of Paris. Clay pots are also made.

Toward the end of the year, the artists try their hand at drawing scenes out-of-doors and then go on to beginning oil painting.

Demonstrating the correct way to apply paint to a picture is Dan Gibson as Dave Osmun and Susan Timbrook observe.



Giving pointers to Bev VanHorn on her work, is art instructor, J. B. Claywell.

Business Curriculum

Four new business subjects, office practice, business law, clerical records, and consumer economics were added to the curriculum of HHS this year. Business students also had an opportunity to take business English, bookkeeping, Typing I or II, and Shorthand I or II.

Office practice acquaints the students with all types of business machines. An office practice set and a filing set supplement their textbooks.

Business law is concerned with the rules that apply to personal business situations and transactions. Students learn such facts as what contracts made by minors are enforceable.

Students of business English are taught how to speak to a group and write letters that get results. Attention is given to using correct grammar.

Clerical records equips students with the basic vocational skills that are common to simple clerical office jobs in which record keeping is involved.

Consumer economics acquaints students with the importance of buying life insurance, how to plan a budget, and the types and sources of consumer credit.

Practice sets also supplement the bookkeeping class. The pupils learn the basic fundamentals of bookkeeping necessary for success in business.

Touch control, accuracy, speed, and many letter forms are emphasized in Typing I. Typists in their second year concentrate on typing production problems.

Memorization of Gregg Theory is an essential part of Shorthand I. Transcription at the typewriter is begun the second semester. The stenographers of Shorthand II strive hard for accuracy in the transcription of their notes. By the end of the year, their goal is taking dictation at 120 words a minute.

A phase of Business English is presented by Aaron Banks, Kathi Stotler, Valarie Bell.

Is Expanded by Four Subjects

Personal Development Important Also

Sewing is a basic part of home economics discovers Barb Schlosser.

Grooming and personal development are two phases of Home Economics I. Students also study the beginning food skills including reading and following simple recipes and preparing basic meals. Beginning sewing involves reading and following a pattern, constructing three garments and doing embroidery work.

Understanding self and family are studied in Home Economics II. The girls take on advanced food planning and prepare dinner meals. They advance their skills in sewing through clothes construction.

Third year home economics students freeze and can foods and make jellies, jams and candies. They learn to prepare meals with convenience foods. Identifying fabrics and using them properly are also a part of this course. Tailoring is included in their advanced sewing skills.

Any senior girl may take Home Economics IV which studies family living, child care and development and home and money management.

BELOW: Self improvement includes hair styling as Roberta Starbuck, Pam Grundish and Cheryl Harter find in Home Economics I.

Canning was again added to home economics this year. Diane Shuherk and Linda Schooley label cans they have finished.

Boys Get Background for Vocations

Industrial Arts, or Shop, provides its students with a solid background for the technical fields they might enter.

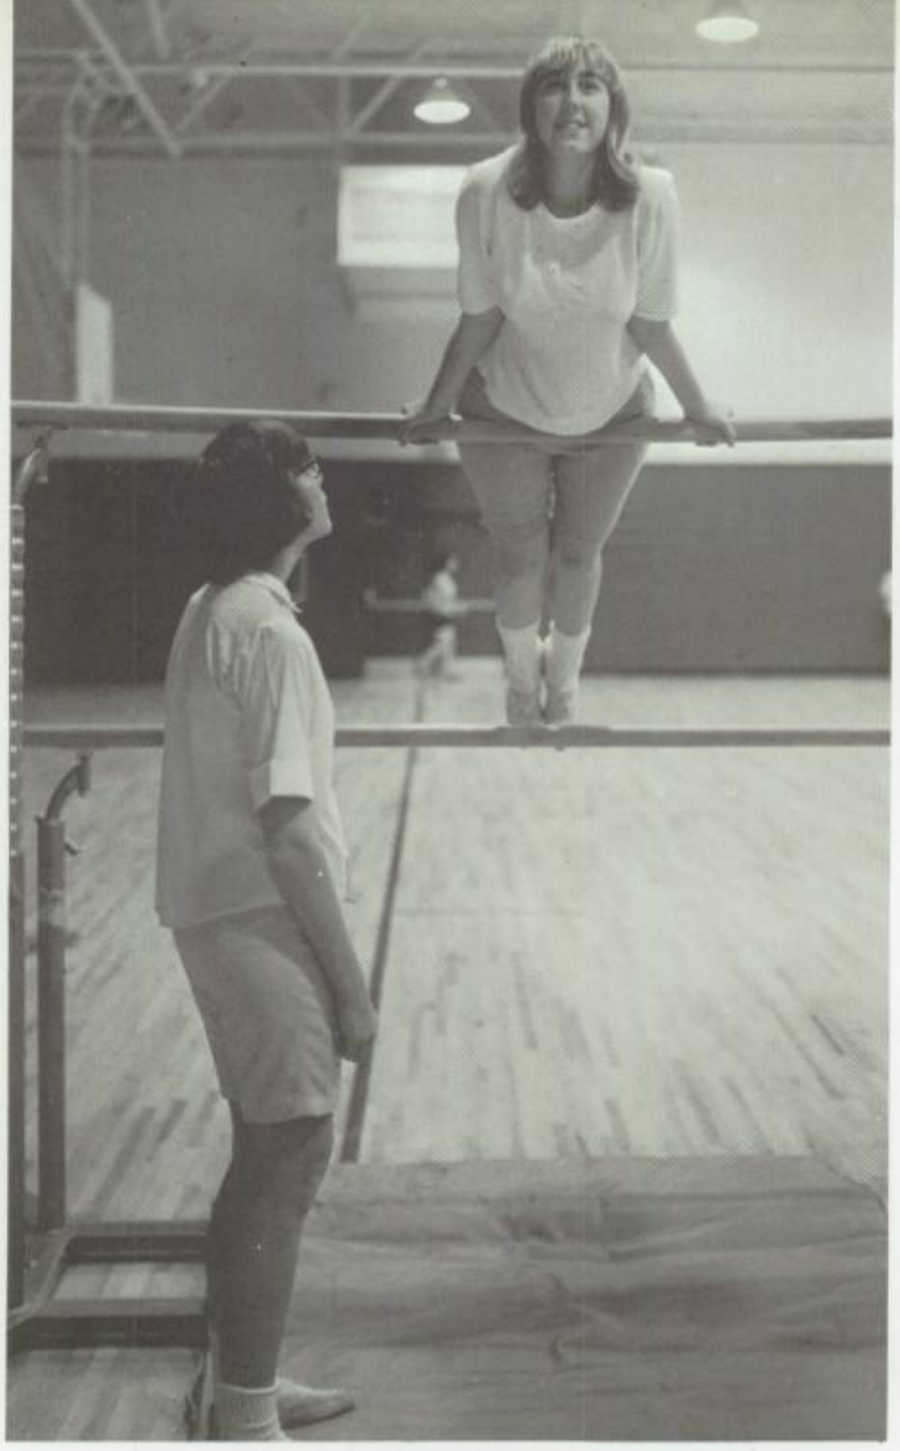
Industrial Arts I is a general survey of all the different aspects of handwork. Freshmen and sophomores concentrate on drawing, leathercarving, woodworking with lathes, saws and the joiner, and for those students going to the Vocational School, an introductory course in welding.

Members of the Industrial Arts II class concentrate on metal working. Beginning the year, they study sheet metal developments, making paper projects at first, then going on to actual models. Later on in the year, the students do architectural drafting and work in the machine shop, welding and soldering. During the end of the course, they work in advanced woods, learning their characteristics. For those who have completed their projects, electrical wiring is studied.

Seniors in Industrial Arts III serve as student supervisors and work on individual projects of their choice.

Louis Bailey puts the finishing touches on his stereo and television cabinet, which won honors at the Industrial Arts Exhibit.

Courses Stress



Demonstrating her ability to use the parallel bars is Kay Brockelbank, as Janet Whonsetler watches.

Physical education at Hicksville High School has resumed with the completion of the new gymnasium. With larger facilities and new, modern equipment, this gymnasium has made it possible for a varied and improved program. There may be as many as four different activities taking place during one period, including weight lifting, wrestling and use of the parallel bars and trampoline. Physical education classes are open to students of all grades from seventh to twelfth.

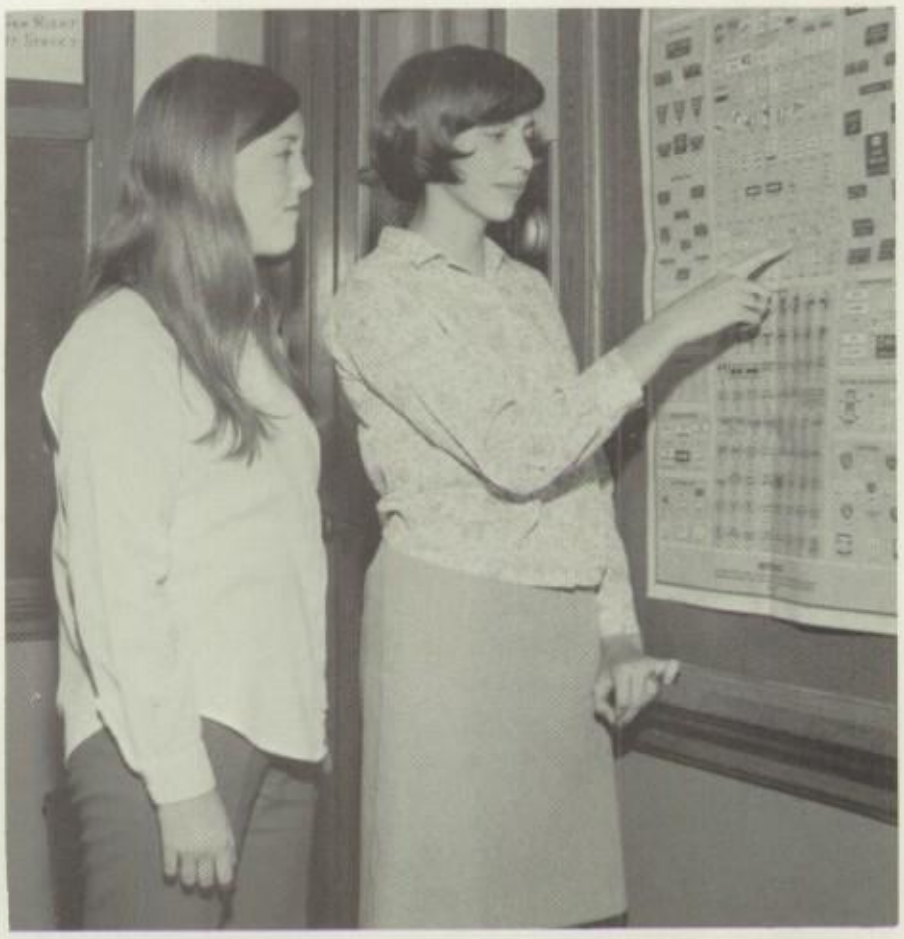
Girls' physical education classes also make use of the new equipment. They study the game of soccer extensively and learn its origin and the rules.

Freshmen are required to participate in the health program. The students learn about various diseases, correct posture, some first aid and how to stay in good health.

George Monroe, Marie Woodring and Jim Thiel show their knowledge of the correct use of the new equipment purchased for the expanded physical education program.

Fitness, Health and Safe Driving

Any student at least 15½ years of age may take the driver's training course which is offered every semester. The purpose of this class is to teach young drivers to drive safely and correctly before they receive their license. The course includes classroom study and, after learning the fundamental rules of driving, several weeks are spent putting to work what has been learned. Driving in town, open road driving and parallel and diagonal parking are all included in this phase of the course.



Checking the road signs studied in driver's training are Paula Richmond and Sharon Rohrs.

LEFT: Learning to drive in all types of weather is part of driver's training as Bernard Schliesser finds on a rainy day.

Demonstrating artificial respiration in health class is Joan Kaduk and Cheryl Timbrook as Pam Shull observes.

In Memoriam

MARGARET HOOTMAN

June 17, 1950—April 13, 1964

"I have desired to go
Where springs not fail,
To fields where flies no sharp and sided hail,
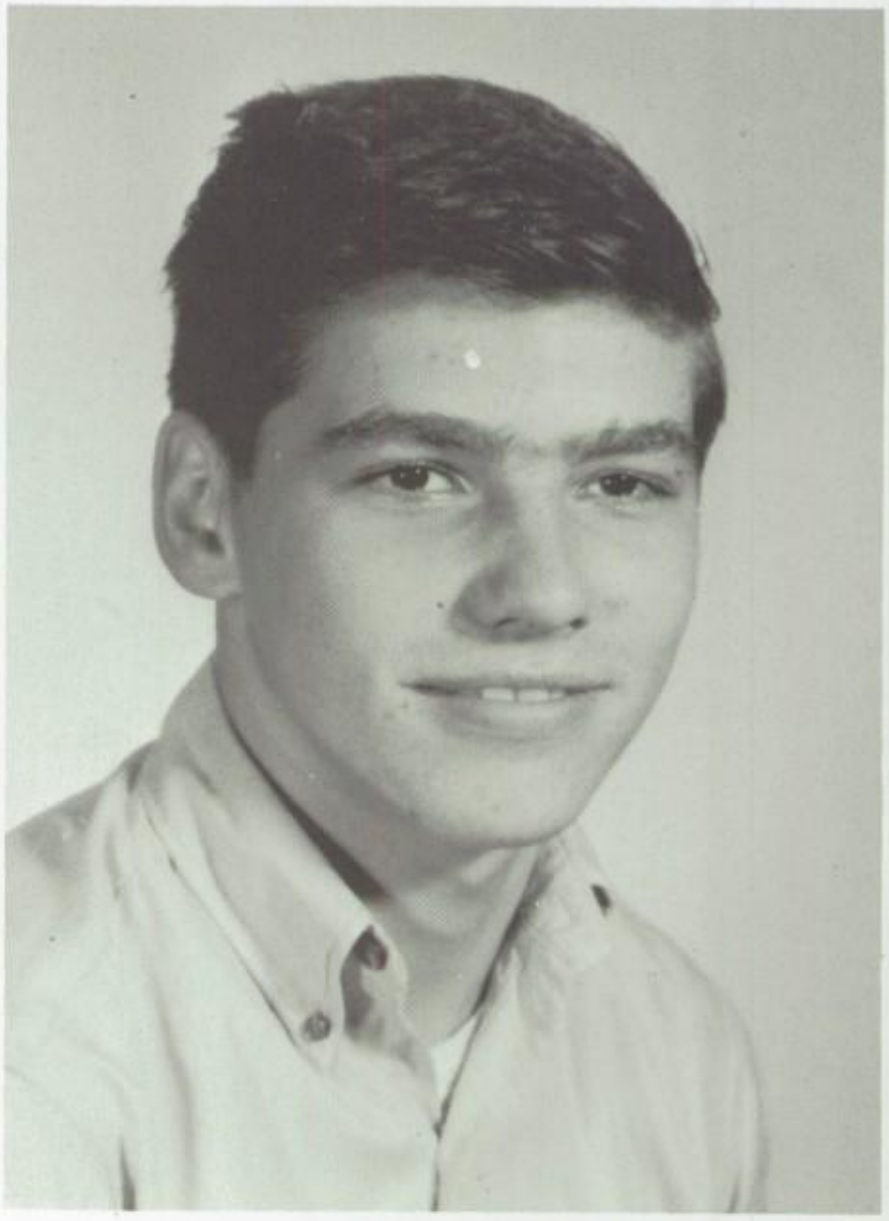
And a few lilies blow.

And I have asked to be
Where no storms come,
Where the green swell in in the haven dumb,
And out of the swing of the sea."

—Gerard Manley Hopkins



STEPHEN L. SLAUGHTER

June 16, 1950—November 15, 1965

"And when I am entombed in my place,
Be it remembered of a single man,
He never, though he dearly loved his race,
For fear of human eyes swerved from his plan."

—Ralph Waldo Emerson

As the house lights dimmed and the curtains parted, the first dramatic production to be held in the new gymnasium began. On Friday, November 17, at 8:00 p.m., the senior class, under the direction of Mr. Dennis Smith, Mr. J. B. Claywell, and Mr. Larry Dull, presented Thornton Wilder's "Our Town."

In three acts, this dramatic play tells of daily life, love, marriage and death in the town of Grover's Corners, New Hampshire. The audience observes the people of this small, 19th century village as they pursue their daily activities and the joys and woes of their lives.

"Our Town" is an unusual play which delves deeply into ideas on life and death. The large audience which attended the play was surprised and pleased by the context of the play and the performances given by the students.

Simon Stimson, the town drunk, leads the local church choir in their weekly rehearsal.

After Presentation of Entertainment

"As Time Goes By," 1968 Coronation Spectacular, was presented by the Senior Class on March 9. In this entertaining show, the seniors presented three aspects of American life—the Roaring 20's, Fabulous 40's, and the Psychedelic 60's.

Highlighting the era of the 1920's were the Charleston Chics, Charlie Chaplin, Betty Boop, and many other old favorites.

1940's U.S.O. show, hosted by none other than Hicksville's Bob Hope, featured the Mills Brothers, Marlene Dietrich, Peggy Roan and several prominent stars. A demonstration of the jitterbug and some of Laurel and Hardy's antics were also presented.

Psychedelic 60's really came on strong with Bill Cosby, Peter, Paul and Mary, hippies and go-go girls. Joe Pyne attacked one of his unsuspecting victims on his program.

Following the entertainment, the coronation of Queen Freida and King Tom took place. The royal court was acknowledged, and the recessional followed.

SeniorsRemember"TheImpossibleDream"

After receiving their diplomas, Jerry Minnig, Lee Peter, Keith Rohrs and Barb Laub are all smiles as they file out.

Sixty-nine seniors of Hicksville High School walked across the stage to receive their diplomas on Wednesday evening, May 22, 1968. The class was presented by Mr. Harold Ringer, principal, and Mr. Claron Laub, vice-president of the Board of Education presented the diplomas. Nine honor students were recognized.

Salutatory and Valedictory addresses were given by Gary Miller and Laverne Miller who maintained the highest point averages of the class with averages of 10.56 and 10.63 respectively. As a special feature, nine senior girls sang two numbers—"You'll Never Walk Alone" and "The Halls of Ivy."

Guest speaker was Mr. David Elsass, assistant dean of education at Bowling Green State University. He spoke to the graduates concerning "The Impossible Dream." Mr. White and Mr. Ringer made statements to the students; Mr. White said, "It's the best graduating class I've ever had from Hicksville."

The high school band, under the direction of Mr. Larry Dull, played the recessional, "Pomp and Circumstance," as the new alumni filed out of the gymnasium.

Preserve Memories

Working hard, the 26 members of the HIXONIAN staff adopted many changes to make their 1968 yearbook unique. Several staff members attended workshops where instructors gave them ideas to use in their book. The changes in the '68 book include double division pages printed in a brown tone and the addition of eight pages, making it possible to enlarge some sections which the staff felt would interest the readers.

Busy most of the year, a troika of editors, Barb Laub, Linda Monroe and Pam Wonderly, rushed to meet numerous deadlines—typing, laying out pages and attending to other business inherent in the publication of a yearbook. Advisor to the HIXONIAN staff is Mrs. Mary Culler.

SPOONDRIFT, the bi-weekly newspaper published by the junior class, under the direction of adviser Mrs. Margaret McAdams and editor Ruth Miller, tried varied techniques in writing this year. Having two columnists and more feature articles helped the prize winning image of the paper.

Two judging organizations felt that the SPOONDRIFT was "a very good paper, well above average in news coverage and writing." The National Scholastic Press Association awarded the paper a First Class Honor Rating and the Northwest Ohio District Journalism Association presented it with an Excellent.

As editor Ruth Miller reaches for layout sheets, Mrs. McAdams begins preparations for another issue of the SPOONDRIFT.

Students Approve New Constitution

Early in the 1967-68 school year, Hicksville High School students voted on and approved a new, comprehensive Constitution for the student body. At this time they approved a dress code. This Constitution expanded and defined the powers of the Student Council and established a Student Court. It also established a line of communication between the Administration and the student body.

The Student Council consists of two boys and two girls from each of the high school classes. After the passage of the Constitution, the Council defined parking regulations and set up a list of suggested prices for school dances. Active in leading the student body, one of their duties is to sponsor the National Honor Society. They also sponsored a Sadie Hawkins Day and a dance with the same theme in the evening. The Student Council is headed by Mike Thiel as president, Bill Pepple, vice president, and Gayle Hitt, secretary-treasurer.

A new facet of student government at HHS is the Student Court. With three justices, one from each of the three upper classes, the Court's job is to recommend punishment for students who violate regulations set by the Student Council. The justices for the 1967-68 term were Steve Sweeney, senior, Diane Timbrook, junior and Stan Stuckey, sophomore. Jeannette Woodring served as court clerk.

Both the Student Council and the Student Court are advised by William Jones.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Highlighting the activities of the National Honor Society were the annual induction ceremony and a banquet. Serving as heads of the club were Laverne Miller, president; Rick Straley, vice president; Linda Monroe, secretary and Mrs. Jane Stolte, adviser.

During the induction ceremony, senior members called those sophomore, junior and senior students who had an accumulative grade average of 3.5 or better in high school and displayed the qualities of leadership, service and character. Students called to membership are chosen by a vote of the faculty and remain probationary members until their senior year as long as they maintain a 3.5 grade average.

Receiving pins which signify permanent membership were seniors Cheryl Altman, Pam Francies, Barb Laub, Gary Miller, Laverne Miller, Linda Monroe, Lee Peter, Rick Straley and Jeannette Woodring.

COLLEGE CLUB

Formerly affiliated with the Future Teachers of America, the College Club formed its own group this year. Membership was open to juniors and seniors interested in college after high school. Officers for the newly organized club included Pam Wonderly, president; Gary Miller, vice president and Barb Laub, secretary-treasurer. Serving as adviser was Mrs. Kathryn Wise.

Hicksville's Aces finished out their 1967 football season with a 5-4 record against tough competition. Hicksville started slowly, absorbing losses to Woodlan 25-7, and Montpelier 30-12, before breaking into the win column.

Aces' first victim was Eastside by a score of 36-6 and quickly followed with a 27-0 romp over Grand Rapids at the Homecoming game. Their next rival, rugged Archbold, dealt the Aces a 20-8 loss. Hicksville then countered with a 31-8 win over Leo.

The next two games were Northwest Buckeye League games. The Aces showed their dominance with victories over Edon 14-8 and Payne 43-8, bringing home the trophy for the third time in three years. Ending the season on a rainsoaked Fostoria St. Wendelin field, the Aces dropped a 28-0 count.

Leading the offensive attack for the Aces were Keith Bungard, with an average of 7.73 yards per carry and 40 points, and Rick Straley averaging 4.48 yards per carry and 36 points. Lee Peter led the defensive chart with 215 defensive points, including a single game record of 40 against Archbold.

Eight seniors returned to the squad from last year's team. This put the Aces a little short of experience as compared to the four teams that beat them. Woodlan, Montpelier, Archbold and Fostoria St. Wendelin all had a minimum of 14 or 15 seniors. The Aces hope to improve their record next year with the experience of 14 returning seniors.

Spirit Stick Adds

Leading the cheers of Aces' fans at Hicksville High School are 25 cheerleaders. These girls also make posters and give skits during pep sessions to raise school spirit.

Two clinics and a cheerleading camp were attended to gain ideas for cheers, songs, chants, skits and pep rallies. The clinics were held at Cincinnati and Columbus, sponsored by the University of Cincinnati cheerleaders and the American Cheerleaders Association, respectively. The girls also attended Smith-Walbridge Cheerleading Camp at Syracuse, Indiana.

Introduced this year was the spirit stick, which was red and white striped. Each week classes competed for possession of the stick. The winner was chosen on the amount of spirit displayed by the members of the class.

Added to the Yell Club activities this year was a card section. A set of cards were purchased and members in the section learned to spell out several words.

The cheerleaders and Yell Club are sponsored by Mrs. Jean Siler.

VARSITY CLUB

Athletic Power! It is evident that Hicksville High School has plenty of that. All facts point to it; the most obvious being the increased size of the HHS Varsity Club.

Boys from all sports—football, cross-country, basketball, baseball and track—are eligible to be members of the Varsity Club. They must first have received two varsity letters in one of these sports. Mr. George Cherry, adviser to the club, supervises the selection for entry into this group.

GIRLS' ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Meeting twice a month, members of the Girls' Athletic Association learned advanced techniques of the various sports they studied during the year. They also attended a clinic on basketball at Bowling Green State University.

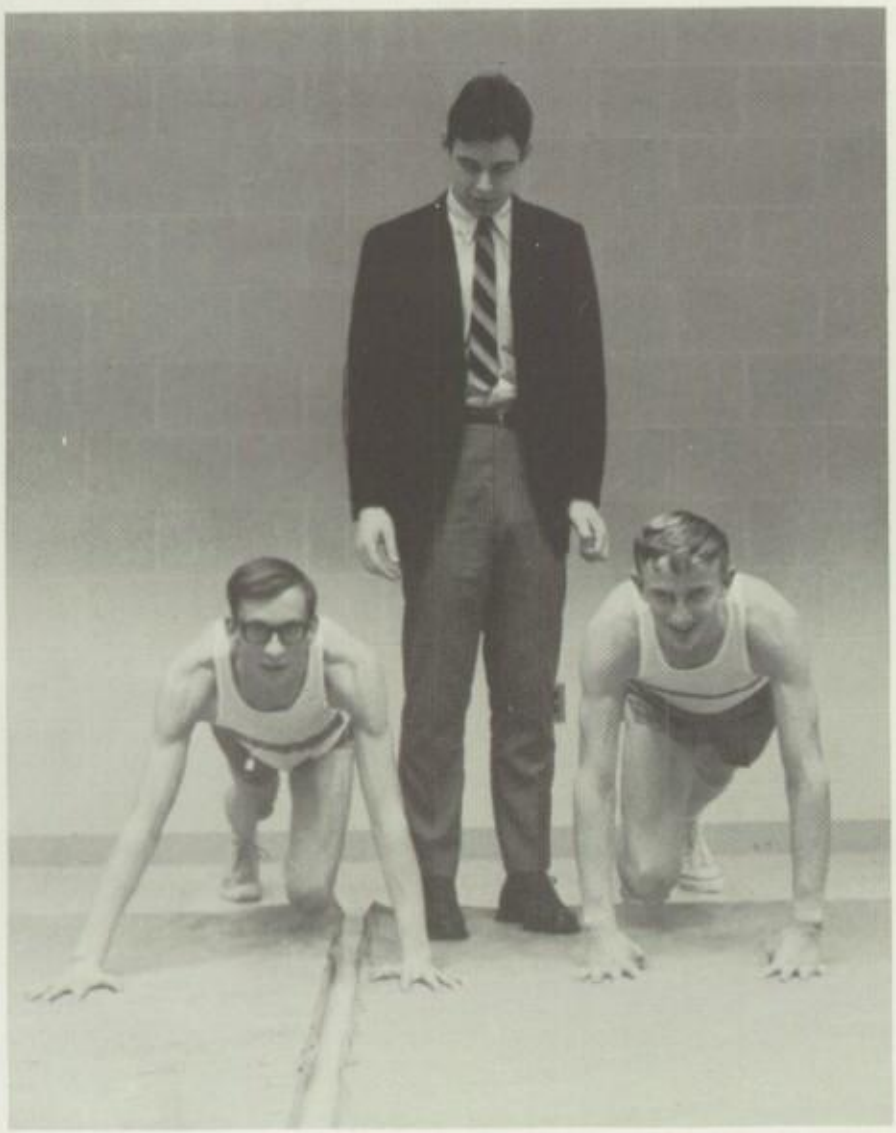
The GAA volleyball, basketball and bowling teams participated in a league composed of area teams including Ayersville, Defiance, Fairview, Hicksville, Holgate, Napoleon, Stryker and Tinora.

RIGHT: Seated at the head table of the GAA Spring Banquet are Kathy Neidhardt, Freida Brockelbank, Mrs. White, Superintendent White, Mrs. Siler and Diana Collins.

Crowned at the Spring Banquet was Miss GAA of 1968, Freida Brockelbank. Her attendant was Kathy Neidhardt. These two outstanding GAA members were honored for their participation in club events and their contributions to the club.

Officers for the 1967-68 school year were Freida Brockelbank, president; Diana Collins, vice president; Janet Whonsetler, secretary; Brenda Rohrs, treasurer and Becky Brockelbank, pointkeeper. Adviser to the GAA is Mrs. Jean Siler.

Senior Runners Break Time Record



Instructing two senior members of the team is Coach Hootman. The boys, Les Smith and Jim Little, tied for second place in the Green Meadows Cross Country Conference.

Under the supervision of Coach Robert Hootman, Hicksville's cross country team compiled record breaking runs on the two-mile course.

Cross country running requires the participants to build up determination and endurance. The course includes such feats as jumping over creeks and running over endless hills in weather sometimes reaching 35 degrees. Practice for the Hicksville squad includes running up and down railroad embankments and over any open field available.

In its third year at HHS, the team has shown improvement in league competition. Seniors Jim Little and Les Smith both broke the school time record by running the course in 12 minutes and 9 seconds. Dedication on the part of the other members was also a key factor in the success of the team.

Jim Little, Monty Grover Break Two

Under the direction of George Cherry and Al Bellisari, Hicksville High School's track team compiled one of its best records at 8-2. The Ace cindermen placed third at the Green Meadows Conference.

Senior Monty Grover shattered the pole vault record by three inches with a jump of 10'9" at the district meet. He ended the season as high point man on Hicksville's team. Points are given for placing in the top three of the event entered.

Grabbing high honors for the Aces was senior Jim Little, voted most valuable player by his fellow teammates. Jim ended a close second in point standing and was the only Ace to qualify at the district meet by running the mile in 4:43. This broke the old time record at HHS, 4:54 minutes held by Darrell Brown.

Administration Revises

Superintendent Arthur White received his B.A. and M.A. degrees from Bowling Green State University. He did additional work at the University of Toledo and at Wayne State University in Detroit. Considerable revision of the curriculum has taken place in Mr. White's first year as superintendent.

Raymond Hook, elementary school principal, received his B.S. from Defiance College and his M.A. from Ohio State University. In addition to consulting with students and their parents, Mr. Hook is the Athletic Director of the high school.

Control of the junior high wing has been added to the responsibilities of Harold Ringer, high school principal. Mr. Ringer received his B.S. from Bowling Green State University and his M.A. from Ohio State University.

Due to the new state ruling that more subjects must be offered to the student body, the Hicksville Board of Education has worked this year to get classes added to the present curriculum.

Secretary to Mr. White, Mrs. Martha Green; secretary to Mr. Ringer, Mrs. Lura Thiel; and secretary to Mr. Hook, Mrs. Connie Hostetler make sure that the school offices run efficiently.

Superintendent Arthur White feels that, "It is the responsibility of the community to provide the school and the school to provide an education for all of its students."

Secretaries, Mrs. Lura Thiel and Mrs. Connie Hostetler begin their new day's duties.
